

epoll()

The `epoll()` function is a Linux-specific system call used for monitoring multiple file descriptors to see if I/O is possible on any of them. It is more efficient than older functions like `select()`.

<https://www.man7.org/linux/man-pages/man7/epoll.7.html>